RE: KRIS MORRIS-VETTE / WATERSHED

We have had the pleasure of working with Kris for several years now.

He has a very positive and professional approach which has always impressed us.

Kris takes an active leadership role and actually 'manages' his projects. He is prepared to make the hard calls if required and engages with all team members from the client down to the consultants, contractor and their various subcontractors. He has a good level of practical experience which in turn brings a pragmatic style to his work. We like this.

All of this is done while managing to create and maintain a positive project team environment. In this respect Kris is unique, many project managers are good at some aspects but Kris has the ability to operate well at all levels of the project.

Working with his company has always been a good experience. If you were ever considering engaging a project manager we would have no hesitation in recommending them to you.

Should you have any more detailed questions please do feel free to contact me.

Yours sincerely
