re: Watershed, Project Management of New Administration Block, St Joseph's Catholic School Onehunga

The official opening of the newly built school administration block in late August 2012 brought to realisation a long awaited desire of the school to have an attractive and functional office administration area and staffroom.

Kris Morris-Vette and Vicki Russell from Watershed were contracted as the project managers and were involved in the project from the beginning.

Kris and Vicki worked extremely well together using their knowledge, expertise, good communication skills and a fair measure of common sense. There were often difficult issues to be resolved between a variety of parties and these people were able to bring good problem solving skills to the table and at times a pragmatic approach that ensured the project stayed on track.

I would have no hesitation in recommending Kris and Vicki from Watershed as project managers to any prospective clients with work in the education sector. They have a feel for this particular niche in the construction market.

I hope I will be able to work with them again in the near future.
